

Unit – 3 : Session – 2 : SLO – 2 | Creating Threads with Runnable

Worksheet (Answers)

1. Fill: In Java, a class implements the `RUNNABLE` interface to create a thread using `Runnable`.
2. T/F: The `run()` method must be defined when implementing `Runnable`. — TRUE
3. MCQ: Correct way to create a thread using `Runnable` → A) `new Thread(new MyRunnable()).start();`
4. Fill: The `Runnable` interface belongs to the `java.lang` PACKAGE.
5. T/F: `Runnable` can be used to create multiple threads sharing the same task. — TRUE
6. MCQ: Keyword used when a class uses the `Runnable` interface → B) `implements`
7. Fill: The `run()` method of a `Runnable` object is invoked by the `THREAD` class.
8. T/F: `Runnable` allows better separation of thread creation and task definition. — TRUE
9. MCQ: Advantage of `Runnable` over extending `Thread` → B) Allows sharing the same task between threads
10. Fill: A thread is started by calling the `START()` method on the `Thread` object.